GO STINGRAYS!

The Sugarwood Stingrays have kicked off a rockin’ 2015 season!

The annual intersquad Red-n-Black meet (May 30th) saw some inspiring swims, especially during the final relay race which pitted current swimmers against their coaches, former coaches, alumni, and even parents. When the water settled, it was the coaches who ultimately took home bragging rights, but fun was had by all. This was the first of four home events the ‘Rays plan to enjoy this season, so if you missed it, you can still catch a meet.

Of all the exciting activities and close finishes, it was actually one of the slowest times of the day that was the most moving. For five year old Connor Morris (one of the newest of Sugarwood’s Stingrays), there was no shortage of emotion as he approached the chest-high-to-him starting block for the first time. But fellow Stingray and veteran swimmer Eddie Ceausu came to the rescue, swimming that lap by Connor’s side, helping the new ‘Ray go the full distance, touching the wall as cheers erupted around the pool.

Having parents, coaches, and alumni in relay races and a fourteen year old helping a five year old in an eight and under event are definitely not the norm and in fact would only happen in an intersquad practice meet, but these things are actually very reflective of the spirit of spending your summer as a Stingray. Hard work and challenges are there to drive and grow our swimmers, but these things lead to growth and connections that in turn lead to smiles and hugs in August.

But August is forever away! J And there’s a ton of summer fun between now and then. We started off strong with wins against the North Side Y and Whittington Creek Subdivision. Our home meet against the Jefferson City Barracudas had to be cancelled due to weather delays but will be held at home July 2nd.

In addition to the rescheduled meet against Jefferson City, the remaining three dual meets for the Sugarwood Stingrays will be in the month of July, during which the city-wide meets will also be held. As always, home meets begin at 6pm after the national anthem and opening prayer.
